“ Remembering Jacob Weaver

Some kids you coach... you remember the stats, the games, the wins.

And then there are kids like Jacob Weaver — the ones you remember because of who they were.

Jacob was the type of player every coach hopes for. Not because he was the loudest or the flashiest, but because when you asked him to do something, you knew he was going to give you everything he had. Whatever the team needed, Jacob was going to try his best to deliver it.

He was reliable. He worked hard. And when the moment came where the game needed to keep moving forward, it always felt like Jacob found a way to come through.

Those are the kids coaches love. The ones who trust you, who show up, who compete, and who try to never let you down.

Jacob was that kid for me.

The truth is, kids like him are why coaches keep coaching. They're the reason you stay late, hit extra ground balls, and keep showing up year after year.

In fact, just a few weeks ago I found myself wanting to get back into coaching again. And when I really thought about why, it was because I missed interactions with players like Jacob.

The news of his passing broke my heart.

I wish there had been a chance to remind him how much he mattered and how many people believed in him.

Jacob mattered. He made an impact. And he's one of the players I will always remember when I think about why coaching means so much.

Some players leave a mark on the scoreboard.

And I'll never forget that kid
