“ I have memories of all the time when we was younger just riding around acting silly and we lost contact he had kids and we lost contact but 25 years later I got up the nerve to go leave a message with his mother with my number and we picked up like we had never been apart like the was never a lost moment and since that day we have always kept up and checked on each other neither of us remarried but I was so glad to get to spend the last days with him my world was complete until I lost him but I know our love for each other was very strong and we could have moved mountains together.
