“ When I went in the room at about 2:00 🕒 the lights were on and nana had a little bit of a smile on her face. She looked very peaceful. The Doctors and nurses did a great job cleaning, hydrating and keeping her looking almost painless. The blinds were pulled and I could see a beautiful sky outside. I am thankful that she no longer has to worry about the issues or the diseases of this world anymore.

It is very hard for me to let go but knowing those things help us wonder if a young handsome guy with a military hat on was waiting for his nurse. I was at peace not long after I found out about the diagnoses but she fought until the very end.

I Love you

P. J.
